

Minister's message about NDIS Quality and Safeguarding Framework

This is a message from the Honourable
Craig Crawford MP.

He is the Minister for Disability Services
in Queensland.

It is important for Queensland to have rules to support the NDIS.

The NDIS Quality and Safeguarding Framework says what the rules in Queensland are.

The framework for short.

The framework started in Queensland in July 2019.

The framework helps people with disability have choice and control.

It says how people on the NDIS can

- Stay safe
- Have their rights

It makes sure that disability services give you good support.

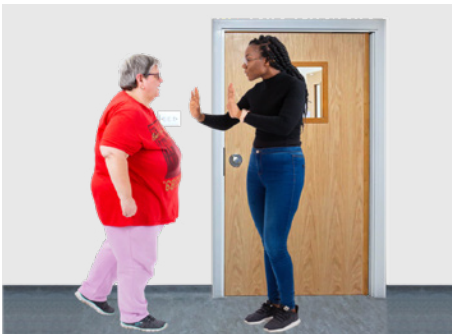

The rules in the framework are for all of Australia.

Queensland looks after some other rules to keep people safe.

One is rules for restrictive practice.

Restrictive practice means that you cannot move freely.

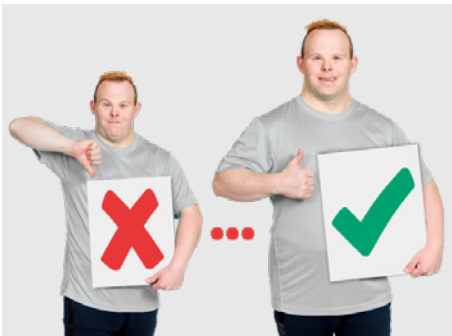

Restrictive practices are used to keep you safe from hurting yourself or other people.

The NDIS has made rules for how to do restrictive practices.

The Queensland government wants to work out what the rules mean for our state.

We want to know what people think about the rules.

We want to talk to

- People with disability
- Families and carers
- Advocates

This will help us decide about how restrictive practice rules will work in Queensland.
